Gardening with your children can be a fun and rewarding experience. Learn about some fun and easy garden projects you can do with your family this summer. Create some colorful edible containers, set a patch aside for a pollinator garden, create a fairy garden or set up a bean tent. Watch your children become excited about the natural world through some hands on family gardening activities.

Both Laura and Melissa have BA's in Botany from the University of Washington and are longtime members of the local horticulture community.

Laura is currently a landscape consultant, specializing in native plantings, wildlife habitat and edible gardens. She is also the Garden Hotline Program Manager at Tilth Alliance and specializes in watershed health, pollinator gardening and integrated pest management education.

Melissa has been employed by several Seattle nurseries, was in the peace Corps in Africa, and currently most strongly advocates for sustainable gardening in her work and home life while managing a community garden in Mill Creek that donates food to a local food pantry.
